HIS MOTHER'S SONG.

Beneath the hot midsummer's sun
The men had marched all day,
And now beside a rippling stream
Upon the grass they lay.
Tired of song and idle jest,
As swept the hours along,
They called to one, who mused apart,
"Come, friend give us a song."
"I fear I cannot please," he said;
"The only songs I know
Are those my mother used to sing
For me—long years ago."
"Sing one of those," a rough voice
cried,
"There's none but true men here;
To every mother's son of us
A mother's songs are dear."
Then sweetly rose the singer's voice
Amid unwanted calm,
"I a soldier of the cross,
A follower of the Lamb?
"Shall I fear to own His cause?"
The very stream was stilled,
And hearts that never throbbed with fear
"The tender thoughts were filled.
"Said the song. The singer said,
As to his feet arose,
"Thanks to you all, my friends, good
night,
God grant us sweet repose."
"Sing us one more," the captain
begged;
The soldier bent his head,
Then glancing around the smiling lips,
"You'll join with me," he said,
"We'll sing this old familiar air,
'All hail the power of Jesus' name!
Let angels prostrate fall.'
Ah! wondrous was the old tune's spell
As on the singer sang,
Man after man fell into line
And loud the voices rang.
The song was done, the camp was still,
Naught but the stream was heard;
But, ah! the depths of every soul
By those old hymns are stirred;
And up from many a bearded lip
In whispers soft and low,
"The prayer that mother taught
Her boy—long years ago."

The Eggman in Philadelphia.
A young farmer from Clementon, N. J., was selling eggs at the corner of Fourth and South streets when a bartender walked up to him and asked him the price of a dozen eggs. The farmer answered: "Forty cents a dozen," and as there was an extra egg in the dozen he wanted three cents extra, but the bartender wanted it "thrown in with the bargain."
"Well," said the one who sells the liquor, "I will take the egg and treat you to a drink."
"All right," said the farmer. When they came to the tavern he was asked what he would drink, to which he replied:
"Well, I shall drink sherry with an egg in it."
And they say farmers buy gold bricks.—Philadelphia Times.

MISS THE LIGHT AND NOISE

Reasons Why Some Townspeople Are Unable to Live Comfortably in the Country.

The necessity which some people feel for noisy surroundings was mentioned by a famous specialist in giving a medical explanation of the case of little Horace Collins, the heroic messenger boy, says the London Daily Mail. The lad, although able to gratify every wish as the guest of Lord Lansdowne at Bowood house, has a mastering longing for the bustle and light of the London streets.
"It is a very clear case of nostalgia," said the doctor. "A person suffering like that has lost two everyday friends, as it were—noise and light. It is entirely due to the nerves. Our nervous system gets into a pronounced groove in accordance with the everyday condition under which we live. A sudden change in living throws the nervous system out of gear. Both light and noise are nervous stimulants to people who live amid noise and light. Take away the comradeship of noise and light, and the nervous system loses two stimulants necessary to its well being and suffers in consequence."
"With the boy Collins the fact that he does not see policemen troubles him, because policemen to him have become an important part of the natural scheme of things."
"A very similar case occurred with a London housekeeper of mine. She was sent away to the country, and simply could not endure to live there. She missed the companionship of noise so much that she had to be brought back to town again quickly, for her health was beginning to suffer."

Business Courtesy.

The adage, "Courtesy costs nothing," would, if true, offer sufficient reason to insure its observance by practically every member of the commercial community; it being fairly obvious to most of us that courtesy is an excellent lubricant for the machinery of business, however, requires a very considerable expenditure of mental effort, which very few of us are capable of sustaining at all times.

Nothing to Say.
According to a delightful story of Shelley, recounted in the International Journal of Ethics by Rev. Bradley G. man, the splendid mental equipment of the poet did not include humor.
In his characteristically impassioned way, Shelley was deeply interested in the problem of immortality. One day he met a nursemaid wheeling a very young child in a perambulator.
"Here is a little soul," he reflected "recently come to earth, out of the great unknown preceding human life. Perhaps he can tell me something about the great unknown after human life. The two realms may be one and the same."
He accosted the infant twice, but of course gained no response, only a blank infantile stare.
"Alas! alas!" sighed Shelley. "How very reticent these little creatures are!"

Sport.

A man out Rockport way has a little tame fox that is led about by a chain. He proposes in the near future to have a "hunt." He will invite "sportsmen" from Cleveland to come out with their dogs, then he will turn loose the little tame fox and send the dogs after him. It is expected that the dogs will catch the little tame fox and tear him to pieces.
The hunt was scheduled to come off some time ago. But the invited guests with their trained hunting dogs failed to arrive, and the dogs of the neighborhood—just ordinary dogs—were pressed into service. For some reason or other these uneducated canines failed to enter into the spirit of the occasion, and could not be induced to take the trail. The little tame fox was accordingly again cooped up in his cage to await a more propitious and sporty slaughtering.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Boosting Town Life.

"After an experience I had this morning," remarked the suburbanist, "I'm feeling rather strong for this apartment thing as against life out of town. I wanted to stay in New York last night to go to a dinner, and one of the boys in the office asked me to put up with him for the night. While I was dressing this morning my collar button slipped out of my fingers and rolled under the bureau, of course. Now, at home, I should have had to go down on my knees and get myself into a rage reaching for the thing. In Jason's apartment all I had to do was to go out into the living room, take one of his crook-handled walking sticks out of the umbrella jar by the door and poke the collar button out into sight. To do that at home I should have had to go down two flights of stairs and get half frozen. See the reason for my enthusiasm?"—N. Y. Press.

HISTORY OF THE PANTOMIME

Was First Introduced to the English Stage in 1702—Has Always Been Popular.

The first pantomime introduced to the English stage was "Tavern Bickers," and was by John Weaver. This was in the year 1702. It was produced at Drury Lane. The great instigator of pantomime in England was, however, John Rich, who devised this form of entertainment in 1717. His first emphatic success was in 1724, when he produced "The Necromancer; or, History of Dr. Faustus." So successful was Rich with his pantomime that Garrick, Quinn and others became exasperated. Rich lived to see pantomime firmly established at Drury Lane and Covent Garden. He died in 1761.

Regarding the subjects of pantomimes the most popular theme this year is, we are informed, "Cinderella," with "Babes in the Wood" second and "Dick Whittington" third. If the London and suburban pantomimes are taken alone "Cinderella" will again be first, while "Babes in the Wood" and "Aladdin" tie for second place. In London and the provinces "Cinderella" has been chosen 14 times, "Babes in the Wood" 12 times and "Dick Whittington" ten times.

Looking back over the last 18 years we find that the most popular subjects have been "Cinderella," "Aladdin," "Dick Whittington," "Robinson Crusoe," and "Babes in the Wood," in the order given.

Real Meaning of Tact.
The real meaning of tact is thinking about others. It means considering what others will think and feel, instead of considering only what we ourselves think and feel.—Home Chat
